From Deacon Garry Burnell

It has been said that if you do a good deed, but have an ulterior motive, it would be better not to do it at all. The only exception is charity. Even though it is not good as doing it with a pure motive, it is still a good deed, and benefits the other person, no matter what our motive. Besides, the fact that selfishness and generosity coexist in us makes the good that we do all the more praiseworthy.

People tend to see the problem of love as being loved rather than being a loving person. Hence, all their efforts go into making themselves lovable through being successful, glamorous, or powerful, or rich. Whereas if they became loving people, they would be loved, and loved for themselves. And in the end, all of us want to be loved for ourselves. Those who are not loved see to be admired.

Love brings out the best in the one who loves. People are at the best and brightest when they love. They are like a glowing lamp. Love is a choice, not a feeling. But to refuse to love is to begin to die. The worst thing of all is a cold indifference.

October 15: 28th Sunday in Ordinary Time

Is 25:6-10a / Phil 4:12-14, 19-20 / Mt 22:1-14

We are all invited to the banquet, but do we accept the invitation? Jesus is speaking about the Kingdom of God in today's parable, but in a similar way, it also applies to Mass. Look at the excuses people in the parable give for not attending the celebration: they are too busy with their own plans to be interrupted by this generous invitation to the banquet. How often do we look at Mass as a burden or see it as an interruption of our other scheduled events - sporting events, chores that need to be done around the house or even work that we need to finish up - almost as if we are saying to God: "I will show up if it is convenient or if I have nothing better to do..." Even if we show up for Mass, are we fully present? Or are we like the guest who came without a wedding garment? Do we spend that hour giving God the worship he is due by our active participation at Mass, or are we planning the rest of our day, thinking about our-to-do lists?

The Sacred Banquet - Bishop Robert Barron

One of the most powerful and enduring symbols of God's intention toward the world is the sacred banquet. God wants his life to flow into us and through us to one another. The result of this is life and life to the full. The question posed by the Gospel is this: when the invitation to this banquet comes, do we answer yes or no?

“Let the entire man be seized with fear; let the whole world tremble; let heaven exult when Christ, the Son of the Living God, is on the altar in the hands of the priest. O admirable height and stupendous condescension! O humble sublimity! O sublime humility! that the Lord of the universe, God and the Son of God, so humbles Himself that for our salvation He hides Himself under a morsel of bread.” –St. Francis of Assisi
